Cost £10 donation to River Annan Trust

Every year the River Annan Trust organises a number of winter grayling fishing events to find out more about the status of stocks of these fish in the river, and other stocks of fish caught by accident by anglers fishing for grayling. The event's have proved popular with a number of anglers and we are now getting some good data which will be useful for showing long term trends in populations and highlight problems we should be aware of.

As an angler you will get opportunities to fish sections of the river that you may never have fished before and the chance to meet lots of like minded people who share a common passion.
